To find a review of a particular book, one must know the author, title, and publication or copyright date. Reprints and later editions are rarely reviewed unless significant changes were made. Begin by looking for the review the year the book was originally published and continue for at least four or five years past the publication date. If you do not know the date, use the Worldcat Database to locate the first publication date. Some books, especially textbooks or books published by small or regional publishers, may not be reviewed.

These are sources to help locate reviews; if you do not find a review, ask a reference librarian for help.

INDEXES TO BOOK REVIEWS*

- Book Review Digest (1905-2008) Z1219 C95 REF

BOOK REVIEWS IN PERIODICAL INDEXES*

- Humanities Index (1974 – 2008) Index Table #1A
- Music Index (1949 – Present) Index Table #8A
- Reader’s Guide to Periodical Literature (1976 – 2008) Index Table #1B
- Social Sciences Index (1974 – 2008) Index Tables #1A

NEWSPAPER INDEX

- New York Times Index Index Table #2B

From 1851 to 1898, reviews are listed under the subject heading “Reviews of Books.” From 1899 to the present, reviews are listed under the subject heading “Book Reviews.” Electronic versions of the New York Times and other newspapers are found in LexisNexis Academic Universe under “News.”

ELECTRONIC RESOURCES

Most databases enable you to access book reviews by indicating “review” in the search options or using that term in your search. All the literary resources include book reviews, as do Academic Search Complete, JSTOR, and Project Muse.

*Use electronic resources such as Academic Search Complete for books published since 2008.